

Afghanistan Policy Lab Working Paper Series

Afghanistan Policy Lab (APL) welcomes the submission of abstracts for its upcoming working paper series. This initiative is primarily focused on but not limited to four thematic areas: humanitarian assistance, women's rights and girls' education, civic space, and reconciliation. We extend this invitation to practitioners, public policy experts, scholars, and students who are interested in contributing to the ongoing discourse on Afghanistan through papers that go beyond mere analysis of the crisis, offering practical, implementable solutions to the political and economic challenges faced in the country. This includes topics covering urgent needs and long-term development measures.

Following the review of submitted abstracts, the APL team will reach out to the respective authors for further information and collaboration.
